Please note: When you resume your studies, the recognition fee for the year of interruption of your studies will be due.

If the student has not been disqualified, they may subsequently apply to the Rector to be readmitted to their previous course of study, if activated, under the same conditions as at the time of suspension, and request recognition of the studies carried out on the new course.

If the course previously attended is not activated, the student will be automatically admitted to the corresponding newly activated degree course.

In the event that the student decides, for personal reasons, to temporarily interrupt their studies, the suspension will take place automatically following the non-renewal of the enrolment for the following academic year.

For further information, please consult the section "Students" on the webpage
Suspension and withdrawal from studies.
